Presents

ATTRACTING YOUNG ADULT AUDIENCES TO TRENTON

2 pm

Saturday, January 26, 2013

Ellarslie, the Trenton City Museum

Cadwalader Park

Cities thrive when young people are actively participating in the arts. How can Trenton's cultural organizations attract high school and college students, and young adults to our activities--theater, art, dance, music, spoken word, etc.?

With a panel of artists and arts managers who work with these audiences

Jesse Elliot, Founder, Trenton Area Music Club

Nicole Hamilton, Advocate for the Arts; Founder, Inside Out Gallery

Will Kasso—Artist/Community Organizer

Tamara Ramos, Artist

Steven Runk, Director of Communications, Peter Lewis Center for the Arts,
Princeton University
